

DESIGN FOR IMPACT

DEV ENG 210

Offered each spring term, the Development Engineering Research & Practice Seminar will provide a community of practice for faculty, students, and industry practitioners who are passionate about designing innovations for global impact.

Speakers will present current research through the lens of Development Engineering, which represents a new interdisciplinary field that combines technology innovation with social and economic research to develop, implement, and evaluate new interventions that address the needs of people living in poverty.

TIME

WEDNESDAY 12:00PM - 2:00PM

ROOM

210 JACOBS HALL

INSTRUCTOR

ALICE AGOGINO, ROSCOE AND ELIZABETH HUGHES
PROFESSOR OF MECHANICAL ENGINEERING

CCN

18503

